LBS MBA Scholarships 2026: Awards, Eligibility and Funding

Introduction

The London Business School MBA gives students access to global employers, experienced classmates and a strong alumni network. Its location in London also creates career options in finance, consulting, technology and entrepreneurship.

However, the programme requires a large investment. Tuition for the 2026 MBA intake is about ₹1.59 crore (£123,950). Students must also pay for rent, food, transport, insurance and travel. LBS MBA scholarships can reduce this cost and lower the need for education loans.

London Business School offers scholarships for many types of applicants. Some reward academic and career success. Others support women, Indian students, engineers and professionals working in social enterprise.

This guide explains the main LBS MBA scholarships, their funding amounts and their basic rules. It also covers the application process and practical tips for Indian applicants.

What Types of LBS MBA Scholarships Are Available?

London Business School Fund Scholarships

The London Business School Scholarships are among the main awards offered to MBA students. The number and value of these awards may change each year.

LBS looks for applicants with strong academic records and clear career progress. It also values leadership, teamwork and community involvement. MBA applicants are usually considered through their main application. A separate scholarship form is not normally required.

Laidlaw Women's Leadership Fund

The Laidlaw Women's Leadership Fund supports women with strong leadership potential. It is especially useful for candidates who face financial barriers.

The fund offers awards worth 50% or 100% of tuition. A half-tuition award may be worth about ₹79.50 lakh (£61,975). A full award may cover about ₹1.59 crore (£123,950).

This scholarship may require an extra application. Applicants can be asked to explain their financial position, leadership experience and future goals. They should answer these questions with clear and personal examples.

Ajay Arora Scholarship for Indian Students

The Ajay Arora Scholarship is designed for Indian MBA applicants. It offers around ₹64.14 lakh (£50,000) to one selected student.

Eligible Indian candidates are usually considered through the MBA application. They do not need to submit a separate scholarship form. However, the award may not cover the full programme cost. Students should still plan for the remaining tuition and living expenses.

BK Birla Scholars Programme

The BK Birla Scholars Programme offers several awards of different values. It recognises applicants with strong academic results and leadership potential.

The programme also values integrity, hard work and service to society. LBS considers eligible applicants during the admissions process. A strong application should show both career success and positive impact.

Technology and Engineering Scholarship

This scholarship supports applicants with experience in technology or engineering. It can cover up to 50% of tuition.

The award may be worth about ₹79.50 lakh (£61,975) based on the 2026 tuition fee. The selected student is expected to take part in technology-related clubs and events at LBS.

Applicants should explain how their background will add value to the classroom. They should also show how they plan to support the school’s technology community.

Gallifrey Scholarship for Social Enterprise

The Gallifrey Scholarship supports applicants with experience in sustainability or social enterprise. It offers around ₹64.14 lakh (£50,000) to one candidate.

The award may favour women and applicants from the Global South. Indian students with experience in social impact may therefore be strong candidates.

Applicants should explain the problem they worked on, the action they took and the result they achieved. Clear examples make the application more believable.

How Do You Apply for LBS MBA Scholarships?

Submit the MBA Application

The first step is to apply for the full-time LBS MBA. The school uses this application to review candidates for many scholarships.

Your essays, résumé, references and career goals should tell the same story. They should show where you have come from, what you have achieved and why you need an MBA.

Wait for Automatic Consideration

Many LBS MBA scholarships use automatic consideration. This means applicants do not need to complete another form.

The London Business School Fund, Ajay Arora, BK Birla and several specialist awards often follow this process. The main MBA application must therefore be strong enough to support both admission and scholarship review.

Complete Extra Requirements

Some awards may ask for extra essays or financial documents. The Laidlaw Women's Leadership Fund is one example.

Read every message from LBS carefully. Missing a deadline or document may remove you from consideration.

How Can Applicants Improve Their Scholarship Chances?

Show Clear Results

Do not use broad claims such as "I am a strong leader." Give a real example instead.

Explain the challenge, the action you took and the result. You can mention revenue growth, costs saved, people managed or communities helped.

Explain Your Contribution to LBS

LBS wants students who will take part in the school community. Explain how you will support clubs, events and classmates.

Your planned contribution should match your experience. A founder may support entrepreneurship activities. A technology professional may join a technology club.

Present Realistic Career Goals

Your post-MBA goal should be clear. State the role, industry and location you plan to target.

Then explain why LBS is right for that goal. Avoid vague claims about becoming a global leader. A focused plan feels more honest and practical.

What Should Indian Applicants Know?

Build a Complete Funding Plan

Indian applicants should not depend on one scholarship. They should combine school awards with savings, family support, external funding or education loans.

Prepare a budget for tuition, rent, food, insurance, flights and visa costs. Include programme travel and emergency expenses as well.

Plan for Currency Changes

Create your budget in both INR and GBP. This will make the full cost easier to understand.

The exchange rate may change before each payment. Keep an extra amount aside so that a weaker rupee does not disrupt your funding plan.

Conclusion

LBS MBA scholarships can reduce the cost of studying at London Business School. However, competition is strong. Applicants should submit a clear MBA application, show measurable impact and explain how they will contribute to LBS. Indian candidates should also build a complete funding plan that covers tuition and living costs.
